

JOHNS HOPKINS

Housing Tips

- If possible, we recommend that you visit Baltimore in advance and view properties before you commit to a lease.
- You may want to commit to a short-term lease if you are unfamiliar with the area.
- If you do not plan to bring a car, we encourage you to look for housing on the Johns Hopkins shuttle route or other easy to access public transportation.
- The Johns Hopkins University does not endorse any of the property owners/companies listed on the off-campus housing site or any other company, products or services by virtue of making this service accessible to the JHU community.
- The University does not inspect properties; students are thus responsible for determining suitable housing.
- Contact a representative on the Neighborhood Contact List to find out more about the areas you are interested in (list is located on the off-campus housing website).
- Average rent in Baltimore (in a student's price range) is $800-$1200 per month. This may or may not include utilities.
- Please use the Apartment Checklist (located on the off-campus housing website) as a resource before signing a lease.

Companies and owners are responsible for reporting their information fairly and accurately.
